Frank has worked in the construction industry since 1991 and joined MCMS as Associate Director in June 2007. Frank's previous career has included facilities management, quantity surveying (both in private practice and for contractors) and claims consultancy both in the UK and abroad. Since being called to the Bar in 2001, Frank has specialised in dispute resolution and in particular the provision of contractual advice. He has extensive experience ranging from major utilities and PFI developments to multi-million pound commercial and residential projects. Frank is familiar with, and has administered, most standard and many bespoke forms of building and engineering contract, both in the UK and Europe (he speaks German fluently). He has extensive experience in representing parties, in particular in adjudication, and has lectured widely on contractual matters. He also has particular experience in vetting and drafting bespoke construction contracts, consultant appointments, collateral warranties, bonds and guarantees, and is experienced in dealing with matters concerning quantum, programming and delay analysis.
